

Author Guidelines ORNAC Journal

1. Articles, submitted on a volunteer basis, should be between apx. 1,000 and 6,000 words of an informative, not promotional, nature. Topics should relate to the Perioperative Nursing practice, appeal to a national audience, and include appropriate references. Articles should be single-spaced, with hard return (not indented) paragraph breaks, and a single space after the end of each sentence.
2. Submissions should include a minimum 50-word Abstract or summary and 3 to 5 key words.
3. Articles are accepted via Scholastica at <http://www.ornac.ca/en/education/journal>. Manuscripts should not include identifying information – please remove any such information from the manuscript and submit it separately as per the Scholastica instructions.
4. Authors must declare any affiliation that could be perceived as a conflict of interest in publishing this article. Upon acceptance of the article, a copyright release form will be required from each author (email editor@ornac.ca if you wish to view a copy of this form).
5. The submission of supporting photographs, diagrams and charts is encouraged. For charts and diagrams please provide electronic versions in separate files. For photographs please provide 300 dpi electronic versions. Upon acceptance a photographer's release form will be required.
6. References are to be arranged in numerical order as they first appear in the article (numbers can be re-used for second and subsequent mentions, no need for IBID) with in text numbering in superscript with NO brackets. Use numbered NLM style endnotes (visit <http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/books/NBK7256/> for full guide) For 4 or more authors, use the first 3 authors' names and then "et al". The following are examples of NLM Style:
 - Textbook: 1. Murphy K, James A. Nursing ethics. (2nd ed.) Toronto: University Press; c1989. p 186.
 - Paginated by Volume: 1. Stephens H. Laparoscopic surgery. Can Urol Assoc J. 1994;163:1730-3.
 - Paginated by Issue: 1. Jones S. Communication and Surgical Safety. AORN J. 2008 Aug;35(3):69-74
7. Please use only manual numbering in the list of references rather than auto-numbering or automatic endnote formatting (where numbers in the article are linked with the endnote text). This ensures all information transfers accurately when the file is converted at time of layout.
8. An edited version of all articles will be provided to the author (by e-mail), prior to publishing, for approval. A signed License of Copyright form is required from each author prior to acceptance for publication.
9. All articles must obtain the approval of the Operating Room Nurses Association of Canada's editorial advisory board prior to publication. Clockwork will obtain this approval on the author's behalf. All questions raised by the editorial advisory must be addressed prior to publication.
10. Only published articles that were written by current ORNAC members will be eligible for any ORNAC awards.
11. The ORNAC Journal is unable to guarantee publication dates for articles. Our review process can require several months to complete and our aim is to publish all articles in a timely manner following final approval.
12. Due to the number of submissions we receive we cannot, unfortunately, guarantee that originals of any items submitted to ORNAC Journal will be returned to the author/photographer.
13. Please Note: Articles that have appeared in other print or on-line publications will not be considered for publication in ORNAC Journal without express, written permission from all previous publishers. Authors should not submit articles to ORNAC Journal that are currently under review or consideration by other publications. We also request the opportunity to complete our review, editing, and publication process prior to articles being considered for reprinting (with our permission) by other publications.
